PRESIDENT UNABLE TO ATTEND FOOTBALL GAME.

Notifies West Point-Annapolis Managers that He Can't Attend. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.-President PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Fresident Roosevelt will not attend the annual football game between the teams from West Point and Annapolis at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, on Nov. 29, after all. The President has found it impossible to be present and has notified the managers of the game that he is extremely sorry for his inability to attend.

Changes are still contemplated Kafer, the fullback, whose collarbone was slightly cracked in the Columbia game, may be able to play for the Tigers, and Bradley, the big guard, is rounding into excellent form.

The practice this afternoon will probably be the last heavy one before the big contest on Saturday. Whether or not the Princeton team got in and played rip-smashing football. Whether or not the Princeton team has as much inherent football ability as the sons of old Eli Saturday alone can tell. But when the question of spirit is considered every one who has followed the Tiger team this year need not wait until Saturday to say, and that with decision, a football team never went to fight for old Nassau which had more spirit, more fighting ability and more unity than that which will face Yale on Nov. 15. As the coaches said in a statement this week, "It is the best team to represent Princeton for at least three years."

Changes are still contemplated.

DUE ROOSEVELT.

President's Influence Kept "Bob" Kernan in College to Lead Crimson Football Team.

If Harvard wins the football chamionship this year in its game with Yale a week from Saturday President Roose-velt is the man the undergraduates and the well-wishers of the team will have to thank. Without Capt. "Bob" Kernan on the team the Crimson wearers would have little hope of conquering the sons of Old Ell. But Capt. "Bob" is on the team, and he is there only through the influence of President Roosevelt.

And here is where Presidential influence worked. The Kernan family lives in Brooklyn. When Capt. "Bob" returned to his home from Harvard last spring the boy's father told him he had played football long enough and that he would have to quit the college and go to work. Even the news that his boy had earned the highest honor in college sport by being elected captain of the team old not deter the father in his team aid not deter the father in his determination.

The pleas of half a dozen of Kernan's mates did not soften the father, but a word from President Roosevelt did the trick. The disappointed collegians communicated with President Roosevelt and asked him to intercede for the sake of old Harvard. The President wrote a letter to Mr. Kernan, and Capt. "Bob" Kernan is on Harvard's team again this year.
